to pass a bipartisan repatriation bill are Exhibit A of what enrages Americans about the deal between Wall Street and the Justice Department, says Merrick Garland, the attorney general. The deal means that the U.S. will not prosecute the former employees of the hedge fund, and the deal is a "manipulation of the justice system," says the U.S. attorney general. Usually by deception, the deal is a "manipulation of the justice system" in an 18th-century sense.
