After the 2002 season, the league was rebranded as the NBA Development League. This league, now known as the NBA G League, is the official minor league of the NBA.

The league was founded in 2001 as the National Basketball Development League (NBADL). It was later renamed the NBA Development League (NBA D-League) in 2005.

The league's first season was in 2001-02. It was initially a 30-team league, but it was later reduced to 15 teams. The league's first All-Star Game was held in 2002.

In 2005, the league was rebranded as the NBA Development League (NBA D-League). This was part of a new collective bargaining agreement between the NBA and the players' union.

The league's first season as the NBA D-League was in 2005-06. It was initially a 15-team league, but it was later expanded to 28 teams.

The league's first All-Star Game was held in 2006. It was a 3-day event, with the first day featuring the All-Star Game, the second day featuring the Slam Dunk Contest, and the third day featuring the Three-Point Contest.
